

Suitable Schools For Hawaiian Students in California

Background

Hawaiian students have been raised to think about going elsewhere (out of Hawaii) for college. With that big of a push many choose schools without visiting, or knowing anything about what the area is like. A good amount of students return home from college before graduating, because of homesickness. Many students do not consider looking at the environment which their college is located at before attending. The overall goal of this study is aimed to help future college students find the best school(s) in California, that is most like home, which will hopefully then eliminate a lot of the homesickness or depression seen in those students.

Methods

Criteria:

- Distance from the ocean (10 miles = 16093 meters)
- Pop of Native Hawaiian/Pacific Islander in the area (More than 300)
- Elevation (Lower elevation: 457 meters, 1500 ft)
- Average temperature (50 degrees over 30 years on average)
- Vegetation in area (closer the better)

Tools being used:

Buffer, Select by location/attribute, intersect, raster calculator, boolean overlay, project, raster project, Euclidean Distance, Reclass.

Research Question

Which colleges will be most suitable (most like home) for Hawaiian kids to attend for college in California?

Results

After are analysis we were able to narrow down the suitable schools to 49 different schools. Many of these schools are specialized in certain areas. The biggest university within the 49 schools is the University of California, Santa Barbara. This will help Hawaiian Students narrow down the list of schools they are looking at, and are able to focus on researching more in depth about these schools based on their interest.
